Diamondhead residents review mineral rights

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Mineral rights and possible consequences landowners face if those rights are owned by someone else was discussed Friday at the Diamondhead Community Association general meeting.

Poplarville resident Patty Palmer told a "horror story" about how she and her husband came home from vacation to find a natural gas drilling well just 400 feet from the house.

"You can't imagine what it was like with the continuous noise, lights and fear of an explosion so close to our home," she said.

Palmer was one of four speakers urging Diamondhead residents to get area legislators to support laws to give surface owners rights that are equal to those of mineral right owners.

Mineral Attorney Lee Parker of Hattiesburg told the group that they were not protected from having a similar happening in their community.

"You don't own one iota of the minerals under your property and cannot dictate a single thing on the property if mineral right owners decide to extract the minerals," he said.

Parker explained that in Mississippi the general definition of mineral rights was any type of commercial product that is extracted from below the surface of the land except sand, gravel and water.

He also reviewed the clause concerning mineral rights of Diamondhead landowners.

According to Parker Diamondhead residents are not free from the possibility of having drilling in the community although the clause states there will be no drilling or exploration in Diamondhead where these operations would disturb "improvements, including homes, buildings, streets, golf courses, golf paths and recreational societies."

Pearl River Representative Margaret "Wootsie" Tate discussed the current laws concerning mineral rights and the failed attempts to get amendments to these laws changed the recent legislative session.

Mike Harris, president of the Pearl River Chapter of the Mississippi Landowners Association, told the group surface owners must band together to get the laws changed to protect their property.

He added the association is currently trying to get a chapter organized in each county to support the changes.

Waveland wastewater plant nets EPA district honor

BY DENA BISNETTE

Waveland's wastewater treatment plant has been honored by U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Region VI for excellence in operations and maintenance during 1986.

EPA Region VI, based in Atlanta, Ga., consists of Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky.

The selection designates Waveland as having the best operations and maintenance program of any plant in the region's eight states.

The plant competed against plants of all sizes and treatment types, according to Waveland Regional Wastewater District Administrator Ethel Schott.

Schott also serves as operations and maintenance superintendent for the plant.

Schott and Assistant Operations and Maintenance Superintendent Jean Longo will travel to Atlanta on Aug. 12 for an awards ceremony at the Region VI offices.

"The facility's standards were up against the toughest sort of competition and to be among the chosen few is a distinct honor. You and your staff have good reason to be proud," stated a letter to Schott from Region VI Administrator Jack E. Ravan.

The treatment plant was operated by the City of Waveland from 1975 to 1982, when the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District was created. Until the creation of the district, Schott was volunteer superintendent of the plant.

The plant's operation and maintenance budget was $122,000 last year, Longo said.

"The city has always been most cooperative in letting us have what we need to keep the plant operating properly," Schott said.

"We have really never had the financial problems most of the smaller plants have. What most plants run into is that the boards they answer to will not or can not provide them with the funding they need."

According to Mayor John Longo Jr., the success of Waveland's wastewater treatment program has resulted in over $10 million in grant funding since 1982.

"We're very, very proud of this honor," the mayor said. "It has resulted from hard work, good long-range planning, good financial programs and careful budgeting."

WAVELAND HONORED—Waveland's wastewater treatment has been honored by U.S. Environmental Protection Agency District VI, which includes eight southeastern states, for excellence in operations and maintenance during 1986. Plant Operations and

Shelter teams being prepared

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay-Waveland-Hancock County Civil Defense Department and the Hancock County Chapter, American Red Cross are organizing teams of volunteers to staff emergency shelters.

Volunteers, mostly former shelter managers and workers, met Thursday with Civil Defense Director Robert Boudin and Disaster Chairman Tom Hartnett.

The meeting had been postponed from May because Boudin had to fill the disaster assistance chairman's position. Hartnett was appointed about two weeks ago, Boudin said.

The shelter volunteers will be divided into teams assigned to individual shelters.

The shelters include all city and county schools, Annunciation

Catholic School in Kiln and St. Rose de Lima Catholic School. St. Stanislaus College is available as a back-up shelter, but is seldom used, Boudin explained.

Shelters may be called into service during hurricanes, floods and other natural emergencies in addition to man-made emergencies like hazardous chemical spills.

Boudin said the shelters may be needed on as little as 10 minutes' notice, but during hurricanes people in low-lying areas may have several hours' notice.

"We're fortunate here in Hancock County that anyone in the lowest part of the county can drive to the highest part in 30 minutes or less," the civil defense director said.

Each shelter team will consist of a Red Cross representative, a representative of the appropriate school district and a city or county law enforcement officer.

Hartnett and Biloxi Red Cross Representative Robert Collins are arranging shelter management and first aid classes to provide the volunteers with training that may be used during various types of emergencies.

In addition, Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Superintendent of Education Roger Oge has requested that a cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) class be organized for school personnel, since school personnel often serve in some voluntary capacity during disasters.

The first aid class has been tentatively scheduled for Aug. 10.

Chamber to dispute county funding cut

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors has decided to dispute a funding cut proposed by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

In a special Friday night meeting called by Chamber of Commerce Board President Richard Thomas, the directors decided to ask the supervisors to reconsider their decision to cut the county share of tax revenue funding for the chamber from $22,400 to $9,400.

The supervisors approved the funding cut Wednesday along with a proposal that the chamber board be reorganized to include four directors from the county, four from Bay St. Louis and four from Waveland.

Supervisors Roger Dale Ladner and A.A. Kellar voted against the move, with Kellar saying he wished to discontinue funding the chamber and Ladner favoring funding at the same level as last year.

Because the supervisors have not given their final approval on the county's 1986-87 budget, which contains the chamber funding proposal, the directors feel that a presentation at Monday's board of supervisors meeting could change their decision.

Thomas, Chamber Vice-president Anthony Lolacano and Chamber Executive Director Olivia Milner will meet with the supervisors Monday to discuss the possible impact of the cut.

The three plan to present the supervisors with a list of past accomplishments of the chamber and county services that could be affected by the cut.

According to the proposal by Supervisor Bert Courrage, the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland would also provide $9,400.

Waveland currently provides $2,400 and Bay St. Louis provides $3,000.

Director Ellis Cuevas said he had spoken to mayors of both cities, who indicated that supplying $9,400 each is not possible.

The directors also plan to provide the supervisors with information on funding for other chambers in Mississippi.

Milner said that information she obtained from the Mississippi

Quotables by Cuevas

Several weeks ago the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce received a letter from a lady in Slidell reporting she cut her foot on an old beer can while swimming on the beach.

This visitor said she always brings along a trash bag and fills it, but reports that is just like 'spitting into the proverbial sea,' because of the literal sea of plastic and aluminum.

As many of you may recall, last winter we had a Clean Our Beach Day, and removed a tremendous amount of debris.

The lady said she cut her foot on a can below the water level and this was the area focused upon during that cleanup.

There has already been some talk among chamber members about the possibility of having another Clean Our Beach Day sometime in January.

We do wish more folks would place their trash in the barrel containers on the beach or take it home with them.

Congratulations are in order for Waveland's Wastewater Treatment Plant for receiving the Environmental Protection Agency's Regional Operations and Maintenance Award for outstanding achievement in plant performance during 1985.

Ethel Schott, administrator for the local wastewater plant, received a letter this week from EPA in Atlanta telling her about the award for the region which comprises eight states.

The Waveland Treatment Plant has been in operation since December 1975.

Schott worked as a volunteer at the plant until 1982 when it became Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District.

The award presentation will be made in Atlanta on August 12 and will be accepted by Schott and Jean Longo.

This may not be the only award for the local facility, as the plant's performance record is being sent to EPA headquarters for consideration in the National Awards Program.

We know there have been some long hours by the officials and employees of the facility which has enabled them to receive such a high award.

Congratulations again to everyone involved with the facility.

The main topic of discussion around town still is the hot and dry weather.

Many of the oldtimers are saying they cannot remember when it has been so hot for such a long period.

The majority of lawns around town are all drying up because of a lack of moisture.

We are hoping that by the time you read this column, we will already had some rain.

The People's Business

A Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

More Bad News For For The Taxpayer

More bad news for the Mississippi taxpayer.

The Legislative Budget Office has just announced that tax increases of at least $70 million must be imposed in 1987 just to meet existing demands. Any new obligations would push the tax requirement even higher, and one legislator has already predicted need for a tax increase in the range of $125 million for next year.

The gloomy news suggests two priorities for 1987.

First, there must be within state government an ongoing, serious search for more effective ways for carrying on the state's business. Simply put, there must be a continuing effort to make better use of existing tax dollars.

The second priority must be a more diligent effort to expand the state's economic base. There are just so many slices in the state's present economic pie.

The key is not in slicing more, but thinner, pieces of the same pie; the key is in expanding the size of the pie.

Expanding the economic pie means there must be a more productive economic development program. This means better and more aggressive leadership, more innovative ideas for economic advancement, more consistency in state and local government policies toward business, more commitment to jobs and economic opportunities.

Now, in the 50th anniversary year of the launching of Mississippi's nationally recognized "Balance Agriculture With Industry" program, we need the same type leadership, the same vision, the same commitment which created BAWI.

Supervisors take revenge on chamber by cutting funds

August 1, 1986
Letters to the Editor
The Sea Coast Echo

To The Editor,
My-O-my, aren't our Hancock County Board of Supervisors something else.

The poor little fellows are sulking and very angry with the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and the mayors of Waveland and Bay St. Louis.

The reason being the Chamber's and the Mayors' support of the Unit System in the recent election.

Well, the supervisors aren't going to let those mean little kids get away with that.

No Sir, they are going to punish them by cutting the Chamber's allowance by nearly two-thirds.

How do you like that?

In fact, one supervisor went on record as saying, he "wouldn't vote to fund them anything."

This same supervisor asked the question, "Are we going to fund people who will split this county apart?"

Does this mean that if the voters didn't vote his way, the county was split apart?

Hogwash, the Unit System was the only way to go.

In my opinion, the chamber and mayors of Waveland and Bay St. Louis are doing a great job and to show my appreciation I am putting my check for $100 in the mail today, payable to the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

Rocky Hill senior feels cheated by air conditioning repairman

July 29, 1986
Sea Coast Echo
Attn: Editor

Dear Sir,

Last Friday, July 24, I called an "Air Condition Co." to come out to my house to check my central unit.

He came about 10:30 a.m. Friday. He looked at the unit and told me I needed a new motor.

Well, we finally came to an agreement about a used motor. He asked me for $75 to buy the motor.

Well, I gave him a check for the $75 made out in his name, because he told me that he hadn't transferred his company's name to the bank.

Two hours later he was back. He pulled his truck in my yard without my knowledge with his girl friend who was on her lunch hour.

By the time I got to the back yard (which was no more than 5 or 10 minutes, he was in the process of putting the sides of the unit back together.

He didn't touch the motor—he could not have possibly put a motor for a 3½-ton unit in a few minutes.

He did put in the capacitor. He was very nervous and dropped the old capacitor on the ground.

I later picked it up, took the sides off the unit and the motor hadn't been touched.

I know I should have asked him for the old motor but he was in such a hurry. He wanted his check so he could return his girl friend to work.

We were taken for $139.95. I wanted to stop payment on the check but my husband wouldn't let me.

The reason I'm writing this letter is to warn anyone, especially the elderly to watch every minute someone is doing a job, or performing a service so they won't be cheated like I was.

I'll never again let anyone do a job or work on an appliance without watching very closely.

We're on Social Security and cannot afford to be cheated.

Lots of folks are having problems with their units because the weather is so terribly hot. Be careful whom you call.

I do hope this letter will help some folks to be very careful.

I would like to report him but he could lie out of it and produce an old motor.

Mrs. Emma Dell Ayers
Rocky Hill, Miss.

Conduct of business does not require presence of full board

July 30, 1986

Dear Editor,

It appears that the Hancock County School Board chairperson does not know that three board members makes a quorum.

Recently, some very important and pressing matters were tabled because one board member, Monvel Cuevas, wasn't present.

I hope that madame president doesn't make a habit of doing this or the educational process in the county will be even slower than it is now.

Mr. Cuevas, unfortunately, has missed 16 of the last 23 meetings.

I'm sure that this attendance record is an embarrassment to him. Any school board member must realize that the job demands that they be available.

Mr. Cuevas should seriously consider not running for any office in the future, as it is obvious that he does not have the time.

In conclusion I want to say that I found it to be both interesting and ironic that some of those same matters that were tabled in Cuevas' absence were discussed and voted on when board member Lennette Necaise was absent.

The decisions-making process should not be held up because of one particular board member, especially when that board member has such a poor attendance record.

Deadwood can be found throughout State Constitution

By Brad Chism
Governor's Constitutional
Commission Staff

Debate over constitutional reform heightens with each meeting of Governor Allain's 350-member Study Commission.

As members discuss the restructuring of state and local government, it is important to review how out-of-date our current Constitution is.

A recent study by the Constitutional Study Commission staff indicates that as much as 10 percent of our 1890 Constitution has no relevance at all in 1986.

At least eight sections violate the U. S. Constitution and are, therefore, unenforceable.

Federal courts have ruled that Mississippi requires too long a period of residence and registration before voting.

Recently, the state requirement of land ownership ($1,500 value) as a qualification for County Supervisor was also thrown out.

Court cases in other states suggest that a section guaranteeing counties representation on elected boards, regardless of population, is contrary to the U. S. Constitution.

Mississippi's 1890 document still contains two sections prescribing racial segregation. One provision prevents mixing of the races in prisons and the other prohibits interracial marriages.

Of course, neither is currently enforced.

Also included in the 1890 document was a provision prohibiting agnostics or atheists from holding office in Mississippi. Not only does this provision run afoul of the U. S. Constitution, it contradicts an earlier section in the State Bill of Rights!

In addition to the sections which are repugnant to the U. S. Constitution, the 1890 document contains numerous provisions which are no longer appropriate.

Certain sections were rendered obsolete by the advances in technology. Others are now lacking because of their extreme detail which limits flexibility with changing needs.

Finally, some sections are simply indicative of a bygone era and reflect peculiar political norms and economic circumstances.

The chart below details the absurdities which run from pensions for Confederate soldiers to a requirement that the governor personally count the money in the state vaults twice a year.

As the list indicates, we have a large amount of constitutional "deadwood."

It no longer serves the purpose for which it was intended and creates confusion when one reads the document.

Any reform efforts should certainly include some "housekeeping" whereby these useless provisions could be eliminated.

Sections Indicative of a Bygone Era:

Section 7 - Relinquishes the state's rights to secede from the Union

Section 8 - Makes all Mississippi residents who are citizens of the U.S., state citizens also.

(These two sections were included first in 1869 as a precondition to readmittance to the Union.)

Section 40 - Prescribes the oath of office for a legislator and implies that some legislators cannot read.

Section 41 - Discusses "floral" legislative districts, a system whereby two counties sharing one senator would alternate representation every four years. We no longer operate this way.

Section 84 - Allows the Legislature to prohibit foreigners from holding land in Mississippi, a practice which discourages industrial relocation.

Section 140 - Discusses an "electoral vote" system which is only a formality now (and unnecessary given the one man-one vote concept.)

Section 183 - Prevents the state, or any county or city, from loaning its credit on behalf of any business enterprise. We have, in effect, ignored this provision since the first issuance of industrial revenue bonds in 1936.

Section 206 - Discusses a county poll tax to be applied toward education. The poll tax has not been used in Mississippi in nearly two decades.

Section 230 - Provides for one

Levee Commissioner for the Louisville, New Orleans and Texas Railway Company, a business no longer in existence.

Section 258 - Refers to "Union Banks" and "Planters Bank," financial institutions which no longer exist in that form.

Section 272 - Provides for pensions for Confederate War Veterans and their widows. One hundred and twenty-one years after the end of that conflict, one can safely assume this section is useless.

Sections Rendered Obsolete by Technological Change:

Section 59 - Allows for legislative members to require the full reading of bills on at least three separate days. With photocopying, members can easily obtain copies of the proposed legislation.

Section 137 - Requires the governor to count the money in the vaults of the state treasury twice a year. Modern banking practices make this section impossible to follow.

Sections Whose Extreme Detail Limits Legislative Flexibility and/or Reduces the Credibility of the Document:

Section 148 - Requires the State Supreme Court to meet twice a year. For all practical purposes, they meet year round.

Section 158 & 164 - Require Chancery & Circuit Courts to meet at least twice each year in each county. Caseloads vary from nearly constant sessions in some counties to very limited needs in others.

Section 201 - Allows the Legislature to provide for education for the ages from six to twenty-one. Questions arise about the legality of kindergartens or post-graduate studies.

(NOTE: The above does not represent an exhaustive list of all obsolete sections. Source: Constitutional Commission Staff.)

There are at least 8 sections of the State Constitution which are repugnant to the U. S. Constitution.

Section 176 - Allows for property requirements as a prerequisite for holding the office of County Supervisor. In May of 1985, a federal court held this section and the statute specifying the requisite amount of property ($1,500 value) as violating the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

Section 170 - Uses the term resident freeholder (property owner) in its description of County Supervisors. While the court case cited above does not mention Section 170, one reasons that here, too, the language runs afoul of the U. S. Constitution.

Section 225 - Provides for, among other things, separation of black and white convicts in penitentiaries. The U. S. Supreme Court has held repeatedly that the racial segregation violates the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

Section 229 - Describes the two levee districts of the Mississippi Delta and guarantees representation for certain counties, regardless of population or voter registration. This clearly violates the one man-one vote principle established by the U. S. Supreme Court over 24 years ago.

Section 241 - Lists the residency requirements for voting in Mississippi along with a "shopping list" of crimes which disqualifies one from voting. In 1972, federal courts held that residency requirements were too long and, therefore, violated the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment. A recent federal court case involving a similar list of crimes was struck down because it was deemed to have discriminatory intent.

Section 251 - Requiring four months prior registration before voting was declared unconstitutional because it violated the 14th Amendment's Equal Protection Clause.

Section 263 - Forbids the marriage of a white person with one of 1/8th or more negro blood. A federal court in Virginia held that this violated the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment.

Section 265 - Prohibits an atheist from holding office in Mississippi. A U. S. Supreme Court case in 1961 held unconstitutional a provision similar to this one.

BaySide fire protection district approved despite dissension

BY DENA BISNETTE

Despite protests, BaySide Park subdivision and neighboring areas served by the BaySide Park Volunteer Fire Department are now BaySide Park Fire Protection District.

A petition that was presented to the Hancock County Board of Supervisors Wednesday opposing creation of the district was withdrawn after mediation by Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge.

The district will include parts of Lakeshore and Bayou Phillips in addition to BaySide park, according to Michael Haas Sr., the attorney representing residents who originally petitioned for creation of the district.

Having the district will allow the BaySide Park Volunteer Fire Department to receive more tax revenue for operations, maintenance, equipment purposes and other needs. That revenue will come from a special millage levy for residents of the district, he added.

The creation of the district was nearly blocked Wednesday when a Joyce Garcia presented a petition of protest to the board.

She stated that dissension exists in the fire department and the residents who had signed the petition "see nothing being done in the near future if this falls into the wrong hands."

If the signatures included 20 percent or more of the registered voters in the proposed district and the petition had not been withdrawn, the matter could have been brought to a vote.

Courge said after the meeting that he had told Garcia and other representing the petitioners that "this would be the only chance for funding."

The supervisors are expected to determine the final figures for the county's 1986-87 budget Monday and will hold a public hearing on the matter Aug. 15.

Courge said any delay in creating the district would have "killed its chances for funding until next year."

The petition of opposition was apparently linked to a disagreement about who should serve on the new district's board of commissioners, he added.

The commissioners listed in the proposal for the creation of the district include Shelby T. Hall, one year term; L. Lloyd Ladner Jr., two years; Willie J. Ellis, three years; Albert Biehl, four years; and Joyce L. Garcia, five years.

In other business this week, the supervisors:

—Authorized the Hancock County Soil and Water Conservation District to proceed with erosion control measures at Stennis Airport and authorized 20 percent matching funds for the $60,000 project;

—Approved holding the 1986 tax sale at the courthouse on Aug. 25;

—Approved county mobile home tax rolls;

—Approved real and personal property land rolls;

—Reappointed Sylvia Pross to the Diamondhead Fire and Water Protection Agency Board of Commissioners and appointed Harvey Comfort to replace Sybil Paul, whose resignation was accepted with regret;

—Approved Supervisor Sam Perniciaro's request that Jerry Seuzeneau be asked to resign from the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission because Seuzeneau has not attended a meeting in more than one year;

—Approved a resolution commending U.S. Navy Mobile Construction Battalion personnel who assisted the county by erecting a temporary bridge at Anslay; —Approved Pwernicario's proposal to blacktop Texas Flat Road from Highway 603 to the entrance of McLeod Park;

—Accepted a letter from State Medical Examiner Thomas Bennett, which stated that Hancock County Coroner Harold Stiglet has fulfilled certification requirements;

—Arranged a meeting with South Central Bell officials to arrange payment for destruction of a prepared roadbed in Beat Two, which occurred when a South Central Bell crew installed an underground line;

—Took bids for paving of Crump Road;

—Discussed emergency beach repairs; and —Agreed to advertise for purchase of beach maintenance equipment.

The board meets again at 9 a.m. Monday.

County libraries offer havens from the heat

The public libraries in the county offer a cool, comfortable and interesting haven from the heat says Prima Wusnack, director of the library system.

Library staff reports that many people have spent hours in the libraries during the past week's heat spell.

What are they doing? Checking on stock market and investment information, writing letters, planning next year's vacation, studying for job exams, reading magazines and browsing for books among other things.

The locations and hours of the libraries in Hancock County are:

—Bay St. Louis, US-90, Monday, 10 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.; Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

—Waveland, 333 Coleman Avenue, Tuesdays through Thursdays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Fridays, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

—Kiln Library, Hwy 603 just north of Kiln-Delisle Road, Tuesdays and Thursdays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Fridays, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

DISCUSS FUND CUTS—A special meeting was called by Hancock County Chamber of Commerce President Dick Thomas, center, on Friday to discuss an almost 60 percent funding cut over the previous year by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors Wednesday. Chamber officers at the head table are, from left, Anthony Loiacano, vice-president, Thomas, and Libby Milner, executive director. The directors voted to have these officers appear before the supervisors Monday and ask them to reconsider the chamber's original budget. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette).

Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives indicated that in areas with a population over 20,000, the average annual contribution to a chamber from city taxes is $28,000. The average annual county contribution is $76,000.

Kellar had stated that other coastal counties provide their chambers with no funding.

Milner pointed out, however, that Coast chambers double as tourism councils and receive contributions in that area.

Contributions in Harrison County to city chambers in Pass Christian, Long Beach, Biloxi and Gulfport range from no money to $2,500, but some chambers are supplied buildings and maintenance services at governmental expense.

Contributions to the chambers under the label tourism councils, however, range from $2,250 to $4,100 from Harrison County.

The chamber delegation also plans to explain to the supervisors that the composition board of directors can not be reorganized according to their by-laws.

The directors are voted on by the chamber membership, and because there are more businesses concentrated in Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Diamondhead than in the unincorporated parts of the county, the majority of members are from those areas, Loiacano said. "It is hard to get rural people to run for office. They usually say they don't have that much time," Director John Mason pointed out.

"Unless the supervisors reconsider, we can count on zero funding because we can not comply with the stipulations for the board," Thomas added.

The directors met again Saturday morning to work on a summary of the many services provided by the chamber to be presented to the supervisors.

Monday's board of supervisors meeting will be 9 a.m. in the boardroom on the second floor of the Hancock County Courthouse.

NSTL Astro Camp opens tomorrow

Astro Camp, a new educational adventure for youngsters, gets off the ground Monday at National Space Technology Laboratories. The five-day program, sponsored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will conclude with graduation ceremonies Friday.

The 30 campers, 10 to 12-year-old boys and girls, will take part in a simulated space shuttle mission, build and launch model rockets and airplanes, study computers and tour a large scale space station mockup at the Michoud Assembly Facility in New Orleans.

Sessions on astronomy and navigation are also planned.

"The emphasis is on the educational experience with individual hands-on training and team projects" said Mack Herring, NASA public affairs officer.

Herring added that enrollment for the Astro Camp was limited to the first 30 applicants and well over 100 inquiries were received.

The 30 slots were filled within one day of the announcement.

Astro Camp is the latest in NSTL's series of "Aerospace '86."

The Astro Tech workshop for advanced high school students and their companion teachers was conducted in March.

NSTL personnel served as instructors at the annual Governor's School for gifted junior and senior high school students in June.

The fifth annual Aerospace Workshop co-sponsored by the University of Southern Mississippi took place in July.

The next event following Astro Camp will be an evening Aerospace seminar for families. Details will be announced in the near future.

Chief instructors for Astro Camp will be Dr. Jerry Brown, NSTL's chief educational programs officer and Jim McMurtry, NSTL's aerospace education officer.

A number of NSTL scientists and engineers will also be involved in the various Astro Camp activities.

Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service

SIGNUP BEGINS AUGUST 4

Starting August 4, Pearl River and Hancock County farmers may volunteer highly erodible cropland for entry into the 1987 Conservation Reserve Program.

The third sign-up period for the new USDA program will end August 15, according to Franklin A. Gennin, County Executive Director of the Pearl River-Hancock County ASCS Office.

The Conservation Reserve Program encourages farmers to stop growing crops on highly erodible cropland and plant it to grass or trees through 10 year contracts with USDA.

"Farmers will have an opportunity during this next sign-up period to bid on a program contract for the 1978 crop year," Gennin said. Successful bidders will be allowed to harvest their 1988 crop before the contract becomes effective, if necessary, he said. Land designated may not be grazed after October 1, 1988.

For retiring highly erodible cropland from production, farmers will receive conservation payment of up to 50 percent of the eligible cost of establishing trees or grass on the acres placed in the program. They also will receive rental payments of up to $50,000 per year, based on the bid per acre times the number of acres under the contract. Gennin said rental payments will be made in cash or commodity certificates annually, as soon as possible after October 1, 1987, to producers with approved contracts. Cost-sharing payments will be made as soon as possible after participants report the approved conservation practice is completed.

The ASCS official said farmers may be more interested in the Conservation Reserve Program now that they know about the sodbuster and conservation compliance rules of the Food Security Act. Those who fail to meet the rules may not be eligible for certain USDA program benefits.

LATE REPORTS

July 15th was the last day for farmers to report their 1986 planted acres, Franklin A. Gennin, County Executive Director of the Pearl River-Hancock County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said several producers in the county have not filed a crop report this year.

"Late-filed acreage reports will be accepted as long as the farmers pays the cost of verifying the acreage and there is physical evidence of production," Gennin said. Late reports are subject to mandatory spot check, he said.

ASCS uses crop reports to determine program compliance and to document crop acreage bases. Before program participants receive price support loans, deficiency payments and other benefits, they are required to report crops and acreages planted, the uses to be made of these crops, and cropland acres to be devoted to the acreage conservation reserve.

"Crop certification is most important to farmers who are participating in the 1986 programs because without an acreage report, farmers are not really participating," The ASCS official said the acreage report determines the level at which farmers are eligible for program payments and other benefits.

species, tolerant of stress and with a long life-expectancy.

Then the best way to protect the chosen trees is with a barrier, rope or other fence, around the tree at the dripline. It should be understood by all involved on the construction team that these are for tree protection and no activity is to be carried out within the boundaries without specific approval.

Other measures that can be used in protecting trees during construction include: having the lot cleared during dry weather to reduce root damage from heavy equipment; confining access to and from the construction site to one well-marked corridor, preferably the driveway location, and confining underground utility lines to areas away from tree roots.

If it is necessary to pass close to a tree to install utility lines, insist on tunneling under major roots rather than digging trenches. Natural grades and drainage patterns should be maintained if possible, or use retaining walls or properly constructed tree wells if grade changes or soil fills are necessary.

If you are planning to build a home or other building and would like assistance or more information on providing protection to trees during construction, contact me at 467-4728.

Hundreds of trees are killed each year in Mississippi by construction. Many times home builders and developers plan to leave trees on a site where future homes and offices are planned.

But, somehow during the construction process, the trees are either injured or stressed to the point where death of the tree or serious decline results.

The six major activities that effect trees during construction are:

Raising or lowering the grade
Damage to the trunk of the tree
Compaction of the soil by heavy equipment or routine foot travel
Severed roots resulting from driveway excavations, installation of concrete slabs and underground utility lines or lowering grades

Changes in soil type due to fill dirt being brought in or careless use of fuels and other products on the construction site, and

Changes in drainage as a result of grade changes, trenching, placement of buildings, and removal of vegetation.

The lack of concern for the unseen root system of trees is a major problem leading to eventual death or decline of trees on construction sites. Of the six leading causes of construction damage mentioned five occur in the root zone of the tree.

In order to better understand root damage, let's look at an article by Thomas O. Perry published in the Journal of Arboriculture.

The article states that roots are opportunistic. That is, they grow wherever the soil environment is favorable. In other words where there is enough moisture, nutrients, and oxygen for them to remain healthy, grow, and take up what's needed by the tree.

Yes, roots need oxygen. This explains why compacting the soil and raising the grade are so detrimental to the tree's health.

Both reduce the amount of oxygen, as well as moisture, available to the roots.

Perry also stated that a tree's roots may extend outward from the tree a distance equal to the tree's height or even two or three times the height of the tree.

Therefore, in order to protect a tree during construction, you must protect more than just the immediate area around the tree's trunk.

A rule of thumb commonly used, is to protect the area within the tree's dripline, an imaginary vertical line from the tips of the outermost branches to the ground.

The one activity not related to the root area that causes major concern during construction is trunk wounds. These are due primarily to negligence on the part of the equipment operator and can usually be corrected by informing and educating the operator or through close and directive supervision.

As a matter of fact, education and supervision are probably the most important factors involved in tree protection; aside from incorporating your trees and tree-saving methods into the planning stage of construction.

A first step in preserving trees during construction is selecting the trees you want to save. They should be healthy specimens of desirable

'Evenings in the Park' schedule listed

The "Tuesday Evenings in the Park" interpretive program at the William M. Colmer Visitor Center in Ocean Springs will continue through August as a result of community response, Superintendent Jerry Eubanks reports.

The programs, which begin at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday evenings, will cover a variety of topics relating to the natural and cultural history along the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

The one hour programs will be presented by National Park Service volunteers and staff beginning Tuesday, August 5, 1988, when Park Ranger Mark Hollomon will present, "Exploring Horn Island," a slide program on one of Gulf Islands National Seashore's wilderness islands.

On the following Tuesday evening, August 12, Michael Hobbs, a Mobile,

Alabama, television news photographer, will lecture and illustrate basic nature photography techniques in his slide presentation, "Photography at Gulf Islands."

The "Tuesday Evenings in the Park" program series will conclude on August 19, when Dave Ruppel, curator of the Scranton Museum in Pascagoula, will show a slide program entitled, "Coastal Birds of Mississippi," which focuses not only on the common coastal birds, but their habitats as well.

"We welcome the continued community support and interest in these programs," said Eubanks.

The programs are free and open to the public. For more information and reservations, call the Visitor Center at (601) 875-9057 between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Ziegeler-Hille

The marriage of Miss Heidi Ellen Hille and Mr. John Alan Ziegeler was solemnized Saturday, July 19, in an afternoon ceremony at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church. Msgr. James P. McGough officiated at the Nuptial Mass uniting the couple.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Francis Hille Jr. of Bay St. Louis. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton B. Ziegeler of Waveland.

Large palms and arrangements of white and pink gladioli, carnations and alstroemeria adorned the sanctuary.

Nuptial music was presented by organist, Gary Lamb, with vocal soloist, Ron Skinner.

Scripture readings were rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Richard K. Chapman of St. Gabriel, La. and offertory bearers were Mrs. Ray J. Saujon of Alta Loma, Texas and Mr. Arthur J. Chapman of Waveland, aunts and uncles of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of crystal organza with high, sheer neckline and basque waistline. The leg-of-mutton sleeves of organza and chantilly lace dropped to a point at the wrist. Both bodice and sleeves were accented with jeweled venise lace. The full skirt of applied organza flowed into a chapel-length train of chantilly lace that fell in tiers from the back waist.

Her contemporary wreath of pearl sprays and silk flowerlets came to a deep point on the forehead and secured a fingertip veil of silk illusion sprinkled with pearls.

The bride carried a cascade of japette orchids, white and pink roses and stephanotis interspersed with baby's breath and seed pearls.

Miss Karen Marie Maynard of Pass Christian was maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Miss Amy Alison Hille of Hattiesburg, Miss Dayle Frances Hille of Bay St. Louis, both sisters of the bride, and Mrs. Ernest Zimmerman of Bay St. Louis.

The attendants wore suede rose taffeta gowns, each featuring scalloped, square neckline, full puffed sleeves, embroidered bodice and long full skirt. Double bows of matching taffeta formed their headpieces.

They carried loose cascades of rubrum lilies, pink and white mini-carnations and alstroemeria accented with baby's breath.

Mr. James R. Mirandy of Hattiesburg served as best man.

Groomsmen were Messrs. Wesley B. Ziegeler and David B. Ziegeler of Bay St. Louis, brothers of the groom, and Mr. Eric L. Kinard of Long Beach.

Mr. Ralph J. Hille of Houma, La., uncle of the bride, was usher.

Mrs. Hille chose for her daughter's wedding a cornflower blue ensemble of silk crepe fashioned with softly draped, long sleeved overblouse.

Mrs. Ziegeler was attired in a cream and beige dress trimmed at square neckline and waist with points of venise lace.

A reception followed the ceremony at Virginia Hall where palms flanked the cake table and a tall arrangement of pink and white fuji mums, carnations, alstroemeria and baby's breath centered the punch table.

Touche of soft pink flowers, baby's breath, fern and ivy carried the color theme throughout Virginia Hall.

Presiding over the punch table were Mrs. K. W. Pepperdene of Lafayette, La. and Mrs. Ray J. Saujon of Alta Loma, Tex., both aunts of the bride, and Miss Angela Davis of Picayune.

Miss Terry Hille of Baton Rouge, La., sister of the bride, served the wedding cake.

After a honeymoon in Charleston, S.C., the couple will make their home in Columbia, S.C.

Gambino-Shiyou

Annunciation Catholic Church in Kiln was the setting for the July 12 marriage of Angela Marie Shiyou and Joseph Vincent Gambino. The Reverend Antone Lynch celebrated a 2 p.m. Nuptial Mass.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Giffon Shiyou of Pass Christian. The groom's parents are Catherine Gambino of Waveland and the late John Anthony Gambino.

Special music was presented by Cynthia Herrmann of Biloxi and Walter Damiens of Waveland.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white tissue satin and lace accents.

The princess style bodice featured venise lace medallions and cameo trim, with off-the-shoulder treatment. Full ballgown sleeves were edged in wedgewood lace. The fitted bodice with piped dropped waistline flowed into a full skirt trimmed with small wedgewood lace ruffles with organza flower and satin ribbon accents with a semi-cathedral train.

Her fingertip veil was held in place by a caplet of lace, pearls and organza flowers.

The bride carried a cascade of royal orchids, pink and white roses, fresia and statice with ribbon and lace.

Karen Ladner of Pass Christian attended her sister as matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Betty Young of Biloxi; Jaquelyn Melton of Saucier and Wanda Necaise of Catahoula.

Flower girls were Kerra Ladner of Pass Christian, niece of the bride; and Vanessa Gambino of Bay St. Louis, niece of the groom.

Consumer Update

By Janet K. Lukens
Coast Consumer Management Center

Fifteen-year mortgage agreements have increased from five percent of all 1984 mortgages to 20 percent of today's mortgages. Why the increase in popularity? Potential interest savings seems to be the major reason.

More of the payment goes toward principal in the early years of the loan. This makes payments slightly larger but dramatically decreases the length of the loan.

In addition to the savings due to greater beginning principal payments, lenders usually offer the 15-year mortgages at 1/2 to 3/4 percent less than the annual interest rate on a 30-year loan.

The following chart shows the savings on a 15-year, 10 percent mortgage as opposed to a 10.5 percent, 30-year mortgage. On a $50,000 loan, payments would be $80 a month more and interest savings would be about $68,000. On a $100,000 loan, payments would increase by $160 a month by decreasing the loan term, but savings would be about $136,000.

Remember that only if the entire loan is paid off would savings actually be realized. If you plan to sell in a short period of time, the savings may not be worth the additional monthly expense. Tax benefits of higher interest should also be considered.

People in the middle income bracket usually find a 15-year mortgage can make the most practical alternative for them. The loan is especially popular among persons expecting to retire in 15 years or so. No matter what your income, the $15 to $50 per month you would net by cutting a half point or more off your interest rate is a very real savings.

Savings From Shorter Term Mortgages
Monthly Payment

Mortgage Amount	30 Year Term at 10.5% Interest	15 Year Term at 10% Interest	Savings Over Life of Loan
$50,000	$457.37	$537.30	$67,939.20
$75,000	$686.05	$805.95	$101,907.00

Home remedies can control garden pests

There are many simple home remedies that control pests. The hand removal of insects, or watering forcefully with a water hose are sometimes all that's needed.

However, before going out and attacking your garden pests, check with your local extension agent to find out what insects are beneficial or harmful to your garden. It could be that you are killing lady beetles as opposed to Japanese beetles.

Lady beetles are beneficial insects that feed on mealy bugs, aphids, scales and spider mites, whereas Japanese beetles are noxious pests that love to eat young tender leaves, flowers as well as ripening fruit. Once the pest has been identified, then you can determine the appropriate remedy.

If you have slugs or snails in your garden, you can place a one to two-inch pan of beer (buried at soil level) near the plants that have been eaten. Be sure to do this at night when the pests are active, so they will be lured to the beer, crawl into the pan and drown.

As a barrier for cutworms, consider placing plastic or tin cans around the young seedlings. Be sure to slit the cans and gently place them around the plant to prevent damage. (Bury the edge an inch or two in the ground.)

Aluminum foil can be used effectively against aphids. Roll out household aluminum foil, with the shiny side facing up over the planting area. Make holes where you plan to plant the seeds or plants and watch what happens.

The aluminum foil acts as a repellent by confusing the insects.

One study made in Connecticut showed that crops like squash, cucumbers and cantaloupe had a better yield when aluminum foil was applied as a strip mulch.

It seems that aphids are attracted to yellow colors, and flee from blue colors. When the sky is blue it reflects off the aluminum foil and aphids stay away. This also worked for leaf hoppers.

Earwigs are hard, reddish-brown, flat-bodied, inch-long insects with pincers at the rear of the body. They feed at night and hide in the day. If there are ragged holes in the foliage of your vegetable crops or if blossoms and corn silk are being eaten in your vegetable garden, you may want to check for earwigs.

To do this, take a walk through your garden at dusk with a flashlight and see if you can spot any earwigs. If you do, you can try one of two things: catch them by hand and deposit them into a jar of hot water or kerosene (alcohol can be substituted); or place traps in your garden the next day.

Earwigs can be trapped easily by placing rolled newspaper in the crotch of a tree, or by placing foot-long pieces of bamboo in areas where they feed at night. It is important to leave both ends of the bamboo open to lure the pests in, and be sure to check your traps the following morning by shaking them over a container of hot water or kerosene.

To get rid of cankerworms, and other pests that crawl up and down trees, try using a sticky band such as a heavy duty tape around the trunk of the tree. Use a fibrous material to close in all the gaps so that the insects will have to crawl onto the sticky surface where they can be captured.

You can even band the tree with a gummy oil or pruning paste around the trunk to capture pests. When these substances are full of insects, remove them and replace.

Continuous battles against garden pests can ultimately discourage them from nesting in your back yard. Unfortunately, these battles seem to never end, but knowing what pests are attacking your plants, what they eat, and which home remedies repel which pests can help.

'Speaking Oracles of God'

By W. Edwin Kearley, Minister

501 Pine St.

Bay St. Louis

"THOU SHALT NOT BEAR FALSE WITNESS"

(Romans 13:9)

Being truthful should be a cornerstone of society. It certainly is a foundation stone of Christianity.

John describes the judgement and says, "But the fearful, and unbelieving, and abominable, and whoremongers, sorcerers, and idolaters and all liars, shall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death." (Revelations 21:8)

The law God gave Moses said, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." (Exodus 20:16.)

Many times the wealthy and influential have put pressure on witnesses to color or tell the opposite of the truth before a court of justice. This command was intended to put a stop to wresting justice.

God also put responsibility on those who have heard unfounded information that they not repeat it. He said, "Thou shalt not raise a false report: put not thine hand with the wicked to be an unrighteous witness. Thou shalt not follow a multitude to do evil; neither shalt thou speak in a cause to decline after many to wrest judgement." (Exodus 23:1-2)

In the Sermon on the Mount Jesus taught one's speech must always be truthful.

"Again ye have heard that it was said to them of old time, thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths: but I say unto you, swear not at all: neither by heaven, for it is the throne of God; nor by the earth for it is the foot stool of his feet; nor by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the Great King. Neither shalt thou swear by thy head, for thou canst not make one hair white or black. But let your speech be, yea, yea; nay, nay; for whatsoever is more than these is of the evil one." (Matthew 5:33-37)

Falsehood is the opposite of truth. It is utterly impossible for them to dwell in peace together in the same heart. This truth no doubt prompted the inspired Paul to exhort, "Wherefore, putting away falsehood, speak ye truth each one with his neighbor." (Ephesians 4:25)

The Speaker's Bible notes that there are at least two faults that bear the name of falsehood, namely, (1) Carelessness about the truth. (2) The effort at deliberate deception. We must not believe without evidence. We must not seek to deceive.

An illustration of the above is found in E. W. McMillan's book entitled "The Minister's Spiritual Life." "Quite some years ago, when I was in a revival meeting in a very large Texas city, the minister of the congregation talked at length with me about some severe criticisms of him on the part of some members in both his own congregation and others in the city. Those criticisms dealt with his character. He strongly denied the charges. I accepted his explanations and sympathized deeply; the matter passed there. Years later I read a confession from him that the charges were true and he asked forgiveness on the part of all concerned. I thanked God for his sincere penitence and forgave him in my heart. Still later he and I appeared together on the same college lectureship and he took me aside briefly to say, 'When I told you I was innocent of those charges, I lied, and I want you to forgive me for the lie.'

He was assured that the difficulty in admitting such a thing was understandable, that I forgave him the moment I read his confession of guilt, and that he could rely firmly on my desires to help him. Then he told me (calling the name of a very prominent minister) that this minister suggested to him that he champion some religious issue and make a strong attack on somebody involved in that issue. Said the advisor, 'People like a champion, they will flock to you immediately, and will forget your former sin.'

But the man said to his eternal credit, "My guilt in the first sin has given me too much remorse for me to be willing to seek Christian friendship through any channel other than pure mercy from God and from forgiving Christians."

May we be determined to speak the truth with love and never bear false witness against our fellow man.

DON QUIXOTE

Mikhail Baryshnikov dances the role of Basil in the "Great Performances" dance presentation of Cervantes' "Don Quixote" at 9 p.m., Friday, August 8, on Mississippi ETV.

This American Ballet Theatre version of the classic ballet, staged by Baryshnikov, was taped live at the Metropolitan Opera House.

The ballet concentrates on the romance and wedding of Basil and Kitri, two characters who figure prominently in the second volume of Cervantes' novel. As Basil, Baryshnikov is a poor but honest barber who loves Kitri, despite her father's interference.

Cynthia Harvey dances the demanding role of Kitri.

WHY FOOD ADDITIVES

The mere mention of food additives conjures up negative reactions among consumers unfamiliar with their chemical names and the reasons for their use. However, food additives are not used by food processors unless they fulfill specific needs. These are:

1. To prevent rancidity, the products of which may be toxic.
2. To maintain nutritional quality.
3. To help preserve "freshness," thus reducing food losses due to spoilage.

The Institute of Food Technologists points out that deficiency diseases, including beriberi, goiter, rickets and scurvy, have virtually disappeared during the past 50 years, due largely to the addition of essential nutrients to common processed foods. Among these are vitamin B in bread, flour and cereals, vitamin C in fruit juice products, iodine in salt, vitamin D in milk and iron and amino acids in infant formula.

Among the additives/preservatives used in foods are such antioxidants as TBHQ, BHA, BHT and PG. They are used to prevent fats and oils contained in foods, including natural oils found in grains and nuts, from becoming rancid. Without antioxidants in your breakfast cereal, for instance, it would have a much shorter shelf life, even though it may contain only 2% to 5% fat or oil. In other words, the flavor and odor of foods containing fats and oils may deteriorate if antioxidants are left out.

Other products that benefit from treatment with antioxidants include frying oils, nut kernels, bakery products, meat and poultry products, cereals, confectionery products and fried snack foods, such as potato chips and corn chips.

Products of the meat-packing and poultry-processing industries constitute a major portion of the world's diet. These include rendered animal and poultry fats, poultry products, freeze-dried meats, pork sausage and others, all of which are susceptible to oxidation which results in rancid tastes and odors. Food-grade antioxidants are useful in controlling rancidity in meat and poultry products.

But the use of additives is not limited to food processors—they are used every day in the home. Among these additives are, such as common products as yeast, sodium bicarbonate (baking soda), acetic acid (in vinegar) and sodium chloride (table salt). While many food additives would be instantly recognizable by their common names, they are usually identified by their chemical names on food packages.

Food additives are helping provide a greater variety and better quality of otherwise seasonal or localized foods to consumers than ever before. Without the benefits provided by food additives, our food supply would be severely limited. Nor should consumers be unduly alarmed by chemical names on ingredient lists, since the FDA continually reviews the safety of approved additives.

Chemicals are naturally present in all the foods we eat. Even the air that we breathe is composed of common chemicals, including oxygen and nitrogen.
